To reprint a label, click the Ship History tab at the top of your FedEx Ship Manager® screen. Select a shipment from the list and then select Reprint. The Reprint label option should only be used if the label has been created but not yet scanned by FedEx. Using the same label to ship multiple shipments is fraudulent and could result in additional billing charges, along with the cancellation of your FedEx account number. If you are using FedEx Ship Manager® Lite, you cannot reprint a label. Can I print labels in advance? You can print labels up to 10 days in advance for FedEx Express shipments and up to five days in advance for FedEx Express Freight shipments. Can I create labels online and print them at a FedEx location? Yes, you have a couple of options: What if I create a label but don't ship my package before the label expires? Once you're ready to ship your package, you'll need to discard the old label and create a new one. You don't need to do anything to cancel your original label, and you won't be charged for it. Can I cancel my shipping label? Yes, you can cancel a shipment any time before we scan your package. Just log in to your account, click the Ship History tab, select the shipment and click Cancel. To cancel a label you created using a credit card in FedEx Ship Manager, call customer service at 1.800.GoFedEx 1.800.463.3339. What if I lost my shipping label? In that case, you'll need to create a new one. (You won't be charged for the lost label if it wasn't used.) If you received a preprinted label in your package, you can ask the sender to email you a new label. Will I be charged if I don't use my shipping label? No, your account is only charged when we scan the label. You aren't charged if you create a label but don't send the shipment. If you created the label using a credit card, the charge will show as "pending" on your account for seven to 10 days. The charge will not be finalized unless the package is scanned within that time. Why was I notified that my package was shipped, but the tracking info says that a label has been created? If the seller has created the label online, the tracking status automatically updates to "Shipped." The tracking number won't show you any actual location information or delivery updates until we scan your package. Does the delivery time start when I create my label? No, the delivery time starts when we scan the package. The ship date on the label should match the date that you plan to get the package to us. What is a return shipping label? We've updated and improved the FedEx Express and FedEx Ground shipping labels. Most notably, you'll see a new barcode. This will enable us to implement new services and include more detail about each shipment right on the label. You'll also notice a better label layout and improved barcode legibility — which means increased read rates and service reliability. Click here to learn more. New FedEx Express shipping label New FedEx Ground shipping label Here's what's changed on the new labels: The barcode length increased to 34 characters. Your FedEx Ground shipper number is located in positions 10–19 of the barcode (separate from the tracking number). The tracking number is 12 characters (with the ability to expand to 14 characters in the future). The tracking number is located in positions 21–34 of the barcode. Some label content and identifiers are in new positions. FedEx Home Delivery® shipping labels will no longer include a "G" identifier, just an "H." Click to view additional changes to FedEx Ground barcodes, effective Spring 2016. FedEx Express barcode FedEx Ground barcode* *FedEx Ground customers will start using the new labels in January 2013. To find out if these changes affect your shipping and receiving processes, please check all that apply below and click Continue. If none of the situations is applicable, the new labels should not affect you. Please note: If you receive EDI shipment status messages (X12 214, flat file, or CSV) for your FedEx Ground shipments, this data will also change. A brief guide to help you simplify your understanding to all the things related to FedEx tracking. King of Overnight Shipping (Photo by Liam Keenan / Unsplash)What is FedEx?FedEx is one of the world's largest express transportation company, providing a secure, reliable, and quick delivery to around 220 countries. The company's major selling point is its overnight shipping and its tracking service, which it spearheaded to provide real-time updates on package location. Most other carrier services have now implemented this feature. The U.S. Government also relies heavily on FedEx as contractors for their logistic needs. FedEx ships approximately 14 million packages a day.To learn more about how FedEx fares against other prominent carriers, go to the Ultimate Shipping Guide.How to Track a FedEx Parcel?FedEx, at its core, follows has similar offerings to its competition, with each parcel is allocated a barcode and a unique tracking number.The parcel is scanned when it arrives and leaves a FedEx facility. After the delivery is completed, FedEx will upload a document proving delivery, be it an image of the recipient's signature, a copy of the FedEx Freight Bill of Lading, or other such documents.Here are some ways to track the parcel via a specific ID and Numbers.Tracking Number: It is the most common method of tracking the shipment. Every service offered by FedEx comes with a tracking number enabling the user to determine where the parcel is located at that moment in time.Track by Reference Number: Track by any Reference number related to your package or freight shipment, which is useful for large shippers to track multiple deliveries at once.Track by TCN: Government shippers can use their Transportation Control Number to track their shipments.Photo by Dan Dennis / UnsplashThe company also offers InSight, which allows higher-volume shippers to monitor the tracking details of inbound and outbound shipments without tracking numbers. Additionally, InSight alerts shippers "of critical events that affect your shipments," the company says. If a delivery is delayed, the shipper will get a notification and contact their customer if necessary.Both basic tracking and InSight are free, so there's no reason not to experiment with them. How Will a FedEx Tracking Number Look Like?The tracking number will mostly have 12 to 15 digits as its format, especially for FedEx Ground and Express shipments.In some rare scenarios, the format of the number could be 20-22 digits.Here are some FedEx tracking number examples9999 999999999 9999 9999 99999999 9999 9999 99999999 9999 9999 99999999 9999 9999 99999999 9999 9999 99999999
